Finesse Fishing Began Here

VOLUME 5, ISSUE 3, 2017

A NOTE FROM CHARLIE

Charlie Brewer, Jr.

A look at the stories and photos in this issue of SliderLines shows what a lot of folks have been doing for the past several months— crappie fishing!

Not only have they (we) been doing some crappie fishing but loading the boat using Slider Crappie Grubs in a variety of colors and Slider Crappie Jig Heads.

The photos are “proof in the pudding” on the effectiveness of our Slider line of crappie grubs. But Slider anglers already knew that.

Crappie fishing with Cooie

By Charlie Brewer, Jr.

I joined my friend “Cooie” Browning for a crappie fishing trip on Lake Martin at Alexander City, AL. back in March.

We launched from the city ramp at 8:00 AM just in time for the rain. Rain drenched our rain suits all day.

“Cooie” Browning

Cooie said the best place to catch crappie then was slow, long line trolling in the middle of creeks. He said the crappie were in middle of creek now but would migrate closer to shore as the water temperature increased. The surface water temperature on this trip was close to 60 degrees.

We were fishing water 8 to 15 feet deep.

My buddy sat at the front of the boat operating the trolling motor. We were moving about 1 or 1.2 miles per hour (hold onto your hat).

Cooie had 4 rods up front; two on each side all rigged with white and chartreuse Slider Crappie Grubs and a lot of line played out.

I had two rods in a holder at the back of boat and held another rod in my hand. My rods were rigged with a black/gold glitter/chartreuse tail Slider Grub on a 1/16 oz. Slider Crappie Jig Head. The rain was still coming down heavy.

But, the crappie are hitting like crazy obviously oblivious to the downpour we were experiencing.

At times I would have a crappie on each of my three rods at the same time. Cooie was loading the boat up front as well.

We fished till noon and called it a day with full picking limits of crappie.

Lots of throw backs were caught as well.

Both Coonie and I were wet, even with rain suits. However, we never noticed.

I'm sure we could have caught over a hundred if we had stayed longer.

As a matter of fact, we did catch close to one hundred crappie counting all the throw backs.

We had a great trip and a lot of fish to clean later at home.

Eric Turner of Jacksonville, AR, a pro staffer with Charlie Brewer's Slider Company, has a couple of very nice bass. Turner said he caught the fish using a Texas rigged, purple and green colored Slider Puppy.

Chris Chandle sent us this photo of just one of the fat crappie he caught in April. Also rather obvious what lure he was fishing with.

Dan Calton and wife Caroline got into some crappie in Shoals Creek on Wilson Lake in North Alabama. Dan caught the papermouths with a Slider Funky Monkey on a red 1/16 ball hook. Caroline was using a red 1/16 double lite wire ball hook. .

TIPS: Part T'wo

"IN HIS OWN WORDS" - The Late CHARLIE BREWER, SR.

Getting hung-up should not be embarrassing that is part of fishing. Everyone gets hung up now and then.

As the old expression goes, "If you ain't getting hung up, you ain't fishing where the fish are."

So, don't be embarrassed about hanging-up. If you do hang-up your lure, cooperate with your partner and make positioning the boat easier on him by hollering out loud and clear just one word, "loose," "free," or "off." Make sure your buddy hears it.

There is no need in making a long-winded conversation over getting your lure free. Save energy and fishing time. In other words, let's be efficient.
